Dragon lizard is found

BELLE GLADE — It's a known fact that things grow bigger on the Glades' muck soil but when lizards hit the seven foot mark it could be time to back off and take a second look.

Because seven feet . . . well, seven feet minus a quarter inch, was the length of a Nile Monitor discovered just before quitting time Saturday on Gressinger Farms land three miles south of SR80 on Brown's Farm Road.

Not that Joe Frazier, the crew truck driver who first saw the monitor at a distance knew what the varmit was. He thought it was a form of life more familiar to the Glades, commonly called a gator, when he first saw it crossing the road.

But by the time Gressinger field foreman Charles Meeks of 146 N.E. Third St. heard about it, the critter had already changed names.

"I was gassing up my truck," Meeks said, "when one of the men came running up yelling they'd found a 'dragon lizard'."

"I didn't know what he was talking about," Meeks allowed later, "but I'd never seen a dragon lizard and I figured I'd go have me a look at that gentleman."

By the time the field foreman was able to drive his truck to the field where the giant lizard was, he said

Frazier had already settled the question of how anyone was to make a closer inspection of the unusual creature by dispatching it with a 12 gauge shotgun.

"You know how it is," Meeks collected later at his home, after a large number of friends and neighbors had braved a light to moderate rain to come "see the varmit." "Some people, when they see a strange animal, they've just got to shoot it."

"I wish they hadn't killed it," he said in retrospect. "I'd have tried to capture it and I believe I could have. It could have been worth a lot of money alive."

Meeks said he threw the reptile on the back of his one-ton truck and carried it home with him, but only after having second thoughts about the response of wildlife officers who might have something to say about capturing or killing an endangered species.

Once home, and while his

Planned Parenthood extends services

BELLE GLADE — John Riley, Executive Director of Planned Parenthood of Palm Beach County, announced this week the opening of an Information-Education Center for this county-wide agency in Belle Glade on September 1st.

In making the announcement, Mr. Riley stated that the Glades Area Director for the Center will be Ms. Judith Oakley. The Center will share office space with the Glades Area Association for Retarded Citizens located at 9 West Ave. A. Planned Parenthood/World Population is a world-wide family planning health care organization and the largest such agency offering such care. The world headquarters is located in London and the main office for Planned Parenthood Federation in the U.S. is located in New York City. Over 200 local Centers offering a variety of services are located throughout the nation.

The Glades Area Center's program will consist mainly in three areas of work: Education, Counseling and Referral. The Executive Director said that with the alarming incidence of teenage pregnancies, the local Planned Parenthood Centers now in operation in West Palm Beach and Boca Raton have as their main target areas in the population the adolescent age levels. "When good education is accomplished in responsible human sexuality, the incidence of promiscuity falls rapidly," he said. "This has been true wherever Planned Parenthood has offered services." The local office will have films and pamphlets available for schools, churches and community organizations. It will eventually provide the area with Speaker's Bureau for programs for local groups.

"In the area of counseling, it is very difficult today when a person finds herself with a problem pregnancy situation. Where to turn, who will listen and what will happen are all questions a problem pregnancy brings up," Mr. Riley stated. As one of its basic beliefs, Planned Parenthood holds to inform a person in this situation about all alternatives available. "And for those persons who are seeking help in having children, we will be providing literature and a

Garbagewomen say job not so bad

BELLE GLADE — It took five years for Dolle Mayo to make the transition from beautician to street repairwoman to garbageman for a day but it was only a matter of a few months for Frances Schinsing to go from babysitter through the same phases.

Both women have one thing in common. They were among the first women to be hired to do what was traditionally men's work in the City Public Works Department and their supervisors are obviously more than pleased over the results.

Mrs. Schinsing began her stint patching streets for the city the first week in March and Mrs. Mayo was hired to the same job in June. They left their patching shovels behind last Thursday, however to work on one of the city's garbage trucks to see how women would do picking up garbage with the mobile toter system now being used as a pilot project.

They were an experiment within an experiment and Sanitation Supervisor Roy Polling said if they were successful and the city commission decides to go completely to the mobile toter system, the experiment could solve one of his biggest problems.

"He had his answer early Thursday afternoon but Streets Supervisor Mark Patton had his two street patchers back."

"They were improving all day," said Frank Curry, a garbage toter who went with the two women on their route Thursday. "Give a couple of days and they'll be as fast as the regular crew."

The two women started their workday Thursday a little after 8 a.m. and were back at the City Garage by 2:30 p.m. Curry said his crew normally begins work at 7:30 and finish sometime between 11:30 a.m. and noon, "but this was their first day."

And what did the two women think about their job-for-a-day? "It wasn't bad," Mrs. Schinsing said. "It wasn't any worse than our regular job."

Mrs. Mayo agreed and said the only effect the job had on her was an aching foot from jumping off the truck, "but that'll be better by morning."

Both women said they were at least as happy with their street patching job as what they'd been doing before they were hired by the city and Mrs. Schinsing said she would rather have either the street job or work on the garbage truck than babysit.

"I'd rather work outside," Mrs. Schinsing said, "and I don't have all those kids to put up with."

Mrs. Mayo said it didn't matter whether she worked inside or outside but her city job pays more than the job she had with a convenience store before she was hired

J.R. KELLEY

Bob White, local manager of Southern Bell, stopped in the other day with a news note on an experiment his company is trying in Jupiter.

It involves a "calling option" plan that could very likely save money for people. Under the experiment, three plans are available and the customer may choose one. He may wish to have unlimited local service, fully measured service and low-use measured service.

These apply to local calls only. Long distance would be billed as usual. The savings would probably be for people who don't use their telephones a whole lot for any kind of call. But even so, it is possible others would save as well.

The unlimited use option would be identical to the present flat-rate cost. The measured service options would be priced lower than unlimited use and would give a customer a specific allowance of calls with additional charges for calls exceeding the allowance. But at no time could the charges be more than 125 percent of the present flat charge, said Bob.

The low-use measured option would be a good thing for folks who don't use their phones often. It would be at a lower rate than the others.

The reason for the new experiment, said Bob, is that inflation and increased local calling have led Southern Bell to question the future of standard flat-rate local servicing and to investigate the possibility of other pricing methods.

It's an attempt to let those who use the telephones pay more and not be subsidized by those who find little use for them.

Already the plan has come under criticism as a rate hike in disguise. I fail to see how. If the customer is given his choice of options, of which is the same as the charge presently being made, where I ask is the rate increase? It would appear to me the plan offers more control over your telephone and if you don't have a teen-aged daughter, you could likely choose measured or low-use billing and save. If you do have said daughter, maybe unlimited would be best at the time.

One interesting fact noted in the news release is that this experiment is a result of not only inflation, but also competition. Once the Belle System went to market under competition. But now they are.

And if this experiment proves that folks can save under this plan, it'll be another positive statement for competition in our society.

Because that's a fact. Competition is almost always the instigator of lower prices and better service. And keeping that in mind, I sometimes wonder if some private enterprises could do a better job of some of the services offered by government. I don't wonder that they would be cheaper...and more efficient. I know what would.

Dean Jones called Saturday night saying that in all his years of journalism, he has taken a lot of pictures of a lot of different things.

But the seven-foot Nile Monitor lizard topped them all. When he said he had a picture of seven foot lizard, I naturally assumed a gator had crossed his path.

But not so. It was a true lizard and a photographic proof can be found elsewhere in this issue.

The Glades plays host to a variety of critters that weren't found here when the Seminoles were the only human inhabitants. And it can support others as well. For instance, everybody knows you can find snook, tarpon and jacks in Lake Okechobee. But the lake also supports flounder, spotted seatrout and others, according to some information I read recently.

And likewise, it can support a healthy population of all types of fish and piranhas. And the Glades can be home to fire ants and killer bees as well as chizy-winks and rabbits.

What this means is that "pets" can sometimes be released into an environment and they can quickly become "pests". That, lizard was probably somebody's pet at one time and who knows if the pets folks have that are capable of making the Glades home?

So if you have an exotic pet, take pains to keep him a pet. Remember that snakes and lizards are both exotics and that we don't need any more of them.

Welcome, Planned Parenthood

An announcement in today's paper notifies people that Planned Parenthood will be opening a Glades office in Belle Glade on Sept. 1.

Planned Parenthood is a welcome addition to the community.

The organization is a non-profit group whose purpose is to provide leadership and information on birth control and family planning as well as low-cost medical services.

While various social groups may do the same things, it's doubtful many are as well known or as effective as Planned Parenthood.

Morality has changed. Right or wrong, the beliefs of the generation past are not the same as the generation present. The result of this, we think, is increasing numbers of illegitimate births, unwanted births and venereal disease.

Far too often, the unwed mother is forced to turn to welfare to support her child. And far too many parents are forced to do the same because family paychecks simply won't support a house full of children.

The trend today is toward smaller families that can receive more parental attention and financial support. But by and large, this trend is noticeable only among the more highly educated segments of society.

Governmental efforts to provide the same leadership as does Planned Parenthood have not been highly successful. Maybe the dedicated individuals and volunteers who make up Planned Parenthood will be more successful.

One good mob

If that was a mob who ran down that robber in Delray Beach the other day, maybe a mobocracy is the answer to declining law and order in America.

Unlike the studied indifference toward other people becoming victims of robbers or assassins, who has come to be accepted behavior for bystanders, a group of Delray citizens literally ran down a 17-year old thief Friday.

Shades of Death Wish but that was a refreshing turnabout. Things are getting downright unsafe for criminals on the streets of Delray and that's the way things should be.

But, whether the group of six or more "angry men" who joined in the hue and cry when the 17-year old robber snatched a $3,400 bankroll from a woman in front of a bank could be termed a mob is another question.

The problem with that term is the connotation that the mob itself is the lawbreaker and the reverse was the case...as it has reportedly been on three different occasions in Delray recently.

There was a time in England that it was any citizen's duty by law to join in the hue and cry and help chase down miscreants and a few years ago, there was a concerted effort to get the citizenry to "have a go" when a crime was perpetrated in a crowded place.

That was just about the time, as a matter of fact, when 37 New Yorkers stood by in their apartments and watched while a helpless woman was attacked three separate times by an assailant, who finally stabbed her to death.

Not one of those 37 people even had the audacity to telephone the police, much less go out on the street and attempt to intervene...and that was only one of any number of similar incidents which has happened all too often in recent years.

We can only give a fervent "Amen" of our own to the comment by Sgt. Neal Rawls of the Delray Police Department that Michael Pickering, the man who finally stopped the thief with a flying body tackle, deserves a public pat on the back, along with everyone else who joined in the chase.

If that kind of person was around every time some punk on the street grabbed a pocketbook from a woman, the incidence rate of street crime could only go one way...down.

and the service it provides may call John D. Riley, executive director, at 656-7984 and he will provide a speaker for meetings.

Individuals who wish to volunteer to help Planned Parenthood can also call Mr. Riley for more information.

Planned Parenthood can be a very good organization for the Glades and deserves the community's support.

Worthwhile

Once in a long while, we hear of a good reason to spend federal taxpayers' money. Not too often, but occasionally.

Such a case is an experiment begun at Florida A&M University in Tallahassee, an experiment which has been refused continuation.

The project's most striking feature is its main laboratory, an eye-catching contrast to the modern brick and concrete buildings of FAMU's Laboratory School and Technology Complex which form its backdrop. It's an old, condemned frame house of the type referred to by Crackers as shotgun shanties.

The house has missing and boarded up windows, gaps in the siding, holes in the floors, and the tin roof leaks. It has no water supply or plumbing, no heating or cooling system and the foundation sags.

It's the type of home being gradually phased out as building codes get stiffer and enforcement gets more universal. Unfortunately, it's also exactly the type of housing providing limited shelter to all too many Floridians as well as quite a few Georgians and Alabamians and poor people all over the South.

As a home, it isn't cheap. It uses too much energy and cold winters and rising energy costs are squeezing the very people who can't afford to pay, the rural poor.

This particular house is a life-sized outdoor laboratory for a graduate program whose thrust is to correct deficiencies for the least possible amount of money. The project is being headed up by British architect Martin Pawley, who has won international recognition for his work in using waste materials in the construction of low-cost housing and some of the ideas born from the project are startling in their simplicity and practicality.

Ideas like using a black-painted junk car body filled with waste materials to absorb heat during the day and release it at night into the typically unheated shack.

Or like using number ten cans to make ductwork which would allow a slowburning wood-grove made from oil drums to heat a whole house for less wood than is ordinarily used to warm only one room. Materials cost? Less than $20.

Or a rainwater collection, purification and storage system costing $250 compared to the average price of a well of $2,000...not counting pump and plumbing.

Unfortunately, the future of the project is uncertain because the grant request for the coming year, the $80,000 needed to fund the project, has been pigeonholed by the State Manpower Services Council's special grants committee.

Of course, the committee probably has superb reasons for discontinuing the project. Probably, there are more worthy projects being funded.

Projects like spending several thousands of out dollars to study the sex life of the South American wombat...or why children fall off tricycles...or how long it takes the average housewife to make breakfast.

There might even be a red-hot item like a study on why prisoners want to escape from jail.

In the meantime, frivolous studies such as how to heat shacks for the least amount of money will have to go by the board.

Sorry about that, you shotgun shanty dwellers, but first things first.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

Well, I want to see the critter. Guess I'm a little like the character James Stewart played in How the West Was Won. Tell me about a critter and that curiosity itch has just gotta be scratched. But a seven foot lizard? Wild? In the Glades?

That's one for the books and it was one I just knew I had to see when Charlie Meeks called me about it Saturday evening...rain or no rain and weekend or no weekend.

When I drove up the Meeks' home, they told me the correct name for the gentleman stretched out on the back of the truck was a Nile Monitor and when Mr. Meeks hauled it off and threw it on the ground, it sure measured out to a good seven feet.

"We thought about leaving it out there," Meeks said, "but I decided, 'No, I'm going to take that gentleman home.'"

I'm glad he did too, and so were a few other people, else we wouldn't have had a chance to get a look at Mr. Gentleman and he was some kind of a varmint to see.

Only, as the saying goes, that wasn't no gentleman, that was a female, according to Sgt. Charlie Dennis, the wildlife inspector who came by and collected the carcass to preserve for posterity in a museum, not to mention checking out the stomach to see what the varmint ate...or at least had been eating.

Guess that was a better use than skinning it out to make shoes and a belt but Dennis made one comment that makes me wonder. Was Mrs. Monitor pregnant?

I don't know the answer to that but it was she who loaded down with a mess of eggs, it would be enough to make me figure out there must be a Mr. Monitor around somewhere...probably somewhere in the vicinity she was found in down on Brown's Farm Road.

And if Mrs. Monitor could be considered the little lady, I don't believe I'd care to meet the man of the house with much less than a 12 gauge shotgun for company...especially not in the dark.

I always have put varmints with teeth and claws and the propensity to use 'em in the same category I put snakes and Crocodiles and long legged beetles and things that go bump in the night.

Not that I don't like 'em but there's a certain kind of respect a body can feel for something that doesn't necessarily mean the respected one is anything you care to cuddle with.

There's been any number of chances where I've been house guests of mine in the past, and they were invariably named Elmer. But if any one of those Elmers had had the kind of gland problems of Mrs. Monitor must've had, they'd have gotten their ovulation notice faster than they could've snapped up a fly for dessert.

Either that or they could've had the place and I would've evicted myself...also PDQ.

But sometimes you get the wrong impression the first time you meet a varmint and I guess that's the case with the gator and me. Here all this time I thought they were out to get us common and uncommon folk.

Apologies to everybody in Congress have got to be made after the wonderful news last Friday. Just unbelievable the munificence they lavished on the average taxpayer with the proposed tax breaks coming up.

Figure I'd be saving a grand total of $15 in income taxes when they come up next year and I just couldn't get over it.

But, Congress recovering from the euphoric train the news story put me in, I quickly began making plans for the windfall coming my way and made up my mind I'd put off using by buying an extra cup of coffee every week, either that or buy a postage stamp each week.

Assuming the price of postage or stamps don't exceed 38 cents over the next year and there ain't no guarantee of that happening.

West Palm team wins tournament

By Karen Hansford
BELLE GLADE-Not even Mother Nature could stop the action this past weekend as the Glades Women's Softball League held its second annual softball tournament at the Belle Glade Little League-Jaycee ballpark.

Heavy rain showers postponed the games on Saturday afternoon, putting the tournament four hours behind schedule. The delay forced the day's games to be played throughout the night, the last one ending around 6 a.m. Sunday morning. Then it was "up and at 'em" at noon Sunday, going until 8 p.m.

The Road Runners from West Palm Beach dominated the action, taking first place in a four-game performance. The team scored a total of 57 runs while holding the opposition to only 13, including a shutout. The women took the final game over Stuart Sailfish, 11-1.

Stuart came in second place, followed by Merle Norman of Okeechobee.

Wallis Pharmacy was the top local team, winning its first two games over South Bay Growers and Merle Norman, before falling victims to the Road Runners, 14-6.

After the loss, Wallis squared off with South Bay Growers again and emerged as the victor in a 14-2 rout. This game was played between 4:30 and 6 a.m. Sunday morning, amid fog and wildlife. Action was momentarily delayed when a large rabbit bounded through center field and across second base, starting the second baseman.

The win entitled Wallis to advance to the next round against Merle Norman, out of Okeechobee.

Wallis took the lead in the second inning, when, after loading the bases on walks, Bonnie Merklinger lined a shot into right-center field for a double, knocking in three of the five runs scored. Lily Smith of Merle Norman had walked a triple over the left fielder's head and then scored for the team's only run.

It looked as if the local team might take the game as the offense added two in the fourth after shutting down Merle Norman to lead, 7-1, then Merle Norman took advantage of five walks and three base hits in the fifth inning to go ahead, 11-7.

That proved to be Wallis' undoing, as the offense, held to six in the fifth and sixth innings, launched a desperate three-run rally in the last inning, including a triple by Wanda Hughes, before the final out was made on a force play at second.

The loss eliminated Wallis, the last local team in the tournament. Merle Norman advanced to the semi-final against Stuart Sailfish, where they in turn were eliminated, 20-12.

Other teams who won and then were eliminated earlier in the tournament were First Baptist Church and South Bay Growers, both winners over the Bank of Pahokee, Morse Trucking defeated Brighton, and Brighton eliminated the Miami Herald.

The tournament also provided a Homerun Derby for men and women. Each contestant was allowed 15 pitches to hit the ball past the homerun mark. The mark for the women was set at 185 feet, while the men's was 275 feet.

First Baptist edges Bank of Pahokee 7-6

By Karen Hansford

BELLE GLADE-It took six and two thirds innings to do it, but First Baptist Church finally overcame a surprising lead by the Bank of Pahokee and edged ahead of the team to win, 7-6, in the Glades Women's Softball League last week. The Monday night game, played in Canal Point, was one which had been postponed earlier due to weather conditions.

Trailing by two runs and with two outs and a runner on second in the last inning, Brenda Davis ripped a hit down the middle, passing through the shortstop. The hit brought the tying run in and put the winning run on second base. Bank of Pahokee lost the chance to pull the game out as Jaren Jones hit a high fly into right field, the ball going through the arms of the fielder.

Bank of Pahokee had threatened to upset early in the game, scoring three runs in the second inning, one of them a double by Joy Moon. The girls added another in the third when Moon knocked a triple into right field and went on home on Kay Barnes' hit.

After being held to no runs in the first and second innings, First Baptist got on the scoreboard with three in the third by Wanda Goggins, Paula Anderson and Liz Canonick.

Bank of Pahokee widened the gap a little in the fifth inning on runs by Joy Moon and Karl Nissen, then First Baptist came back with one in the bottom of the inning to make it 6-4.

The sixth inning was a standoff between the two teams, then First Baptist's two-out rally in the seventh was good for the victory, making the final score 7-6.

In Tuesday night's doubleheader in Belle Glade, Wallis Pharmacy burnt Dixie Fried Chicken with 23 runs in five innings of play.

Wallis scored most of its runs in the first inning, sending every player to the plate twice. Donna Akin walked two homers in her first two at-bats.

Dixie Fried's lone run came in the second inning when Awilda Rosario rounded the bases. The final score was 23-1, in favor of Wallis.

In the second game, Community United Methodist Church (CUMC) stayed off a fifth inning rally by Bank of Pahokee to triumph, 20-10 in six innings.

After holding Bank of Pahokee to one run by Peggy Heffernan in the first inning, CUMC bounced back with nine, two of them homers by Donia Adams and Marie Cranford. The batters were having a field day as Alina Serra doubled and Janie Priest slammed a triple into left field, in addition to the homers.

Joy Moon drilled a three-base shot into right field in the third inning, putting the Bank of Pahokee ahead, two, but Donia Adams tripled in the bottom of the inning for CUMC to score two, making the score 12-3. CUMC had added a run in the second inning.

Bank of Pahokee rallied for five runs in the fourth inning before Tami Reeves grounded out to third base for the third out. CUMC went on for the win, adding a little insurance in the form of eight runs in the last two innings. Rachel Cranford lined a double down the middle for two of the runs. The defense held the opposition to only two more runs to hang on for the win, 20-10.

Last Thursday night's games were rained out. They will be played at a later date.

South Bay Growers, 6-1; Wallis Pharmacy, 6-2; Miami Herald, 5-2; CUMC, 5-3; Local 2152, 1-6; Dixie Fried, Chicken, 1-7; Bank of Pahokee, 1-7.

Permits are slashed for lake trawl boats

Permits for commercial trawl netting in Lake Okeechobee have been cut in half by the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission.

According to news release, only 125 permits will be issued this year. This is half the 250 that have been issued since the Lake Okeechobee Fisheries Utilization and Management Program started two years ago.

F.G. Banks, director of the Division of Fisheries, said the permits will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis. "Fishermen requesting and renewing the permits must have satisfactory proof of an intent and capability to actively engage in fishing activities with trawls."

He said the new limit will provide for better utilization of legally permitted gear in order to achieve the objectives of the program, which are the removal and utilization of up to 22 million pounds of fish from the lake each year.

Trawling is one of four legal methods of taking fish commercially from the lake. The others are fish trapping with single-funnel traps, trotting and seining.

Permits for trawling cost the renter $50 and allow the taking of all fish except bass and pickerel within designated areas of the lake.

Trawls are similar to shrimp nets and are pulled by power boats. They and traps have come under heaviest fire from sportsmen opposed to the Lake Okeechobee program.

New permits will be available from July 1 and will be good through June 30, 1979.

Try to halt spread of smut

Counties quarantined

Florida's four sugar cane-producing counties, including Hendry and Glades, were quarantined Monday by state Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner in an effort to stop the spread of cane smut fungus.

Conner said seed cane, equipment and other material will be prohibited from being moved outside Glades, Hendry, Palm Beach and Martin counties, which comprise the major commercial sugar cane-growing areas of Florida.

The smut fungus, which affects only sugar cane, made its first reported appearance in the U.S. in early July in Hendry County.

The disease has already wiped out sugar cane crops across the world and is threatening a crop that yields $245 million in South Florida.

The quarantine will not mean much to growers in the counties, said Joe Orsenigo, director of agricultural research for the Sugar Cane League in Clewiston.

The quarantine is not expected to affect the crop production, Orsenigo said.

"This shouldn't be any problem because the equipment can be washed and inspected if it needs to go outside this area," Orsenigo said.

The cane harvest begins in November.

Since the discovery of sugar cane smut in South Florida, federal agriculture officials have been surveying 300,000 acres of sugar cane in the area.

Infestation of the fungus has been found in 14 sections of the growing area, state agriculture officials said. The heaviest concentration of smut is confined to an area in Hendry and Palm Beach counties seven miles wide by eight miles deep southeast of Clewiston. Only one infested field has been found in Glades County, officials said. State officials say some strains of sugar cane have been developed that resist the smut, but new strains of the disease have been known to kill the new plant varieties.

About 11 varieties of sugar cane grow in Florida and state sugar cane growers produce about 9 to 10 percent of the sugar consumed annually in the United States.

According to agriculture experts, the fungus is not apparent until the sugar cane begins growing. The fungus retards growth and prevents the cane from producing any sugar. If undetected before harvest, a diseased cane stalk will have not produced sugar.

The smut can be detected by examining the leaves at the top of the sugar cane stalk. Healthy stalks will unfold leaves that curl, but the fungus will prevent the leaves from curling.

The three known methods for killing the fungus involve destroying the infected stalk, officials said, as alternative many growers find unacceptable.

To prepare for the feared infestation, many growers have been working on developing cane varieties that can withstand the disease.

"The sugar cane smut fungus that has invaded our state does not lend itself to eradication or extreme control measures; therefore, I am looking to the industry along with the research firms of the U.S. Department of Agriculture...to develop resistant varieties, as is being done in Jamaica, to protect our industry from a further loss in production due to sugar cane smut," said Conner.

Lions hear Belle Glade budget

BELLE GLADE — With an 8 percent decrease in Belle Glade's budget the city is all set to begin its fiscal year Oct. 1, Belle Glade City Manager Robert R. Sanders reported to the Lions Club last Wednesday.

The present budget is much more than the coming years because of the many expenses the city has undergone in the past year. Although the new city hall was built with money acquired from a Federal Grant, the new buildings furnishing cost the city between $50,000 and $60,000.

The firehouse is now fully equipped with the necessary equipment a city the size of Belle Glade requires.

The tentatively approved, $5,618,330 budget is good news for the city. Good news for property owners is the quarter mill reduction.

Incorporated with the good news is the 35 percent increase in the water and sewage bill. The increase was a must because of the last bond issue, where the level of revenue was not maintained. But with the present increase Belle Glade still remains with the cheapest rates in the 37 cities in Palm Beach County.

The 1978-79 year will be the first year in a very long time where the water and sewage system will be self-supportive. The rate increase has made this major step for the city possible.

Changing the subject and speaking about recreation Sanders said that it earns money for the city. The Marina has the largest profit margin of any other money source in the city, and many times money from the recreation fund has been taken out and placed in the general fund to cover other debts.

Bloodmobile will make Pahokee visit

PAHOKEE—The Bloodmobile of the Palm Beach Blood Bank will be parked at Everglades Memorial Hospital Monday, August 14, from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Marge Brown, R.N., of the Blood Bank, said the extended hours and the Bloodmobile replace the usual 12 noon to 8 p.m. hours every Monday inside the hospital. The unit will be parked in front of the hospital, 200 South Barfield.

Mrs. Brown urges Pahokee residents to give blood to the hospital community blood bank in order to help patients who need blood. The August 14 goal is 100 pints of blood, she noted.

Sugar bill makes progress in House

The House Agriculture Committee, acknowledging White House opposition to a bill to protect the nation's cane and sugar beet growers, adopted amendments Friday making what are termed "major concessions."

But the committee did so without any assurance that the amendments go far enough to satisfy the administration's fears that the bill will fuel inflation by increasing the retail price of sugar and foods containing it.

The committee postponed until Tuesday a decision on sending the amended bill to the full House, thus allowing time for the administration to react.

The amendments adopted by the committee lower the price the bill would guarantee to sugar growers from 17 cents a pound to 16 cents, and give the administration wider latitude in determining how to bring market prices up to that level.

These amendments represent substantial concessions, and it is clear from the evidence that at least some sugar producers will be unable to stay in business at these price levels," said Rep. Elgin de la Garza of Texas.

However, he added, "It is clearly preferable to accept some reduction in production, rather than risk the economic destruction of the extra domestic sugar production capacity -- an alternative that would penalize consumers far more than most people apparently realize."

Under the de la Garza bill, the administration would be required to bring the market price of domestic raw sugar up to the 16-cent level by imposing fees and quotas on sugar imports. Sugar is now selling for 6 to 7 cents on the world market.

In offering to lower the price objective in the de la Garza bill by a cent, the committee still is seeking a higher market price than the administration would like to see.

An administration-supported bill now before the House Ways and Means committee would seek to hold the market price of domestic sugar to 13.5 cents a pound, and to make direct government payments to producers to bring their return up to a little more than 14 cents.

The de la Garza bill is supported to serve as a back-up to an International Sugar Agreement that would seek to stabilize the world price of sugar at 11 to 19 cents a pound.

U.S. ratification of the sugar agreement is bottled up in a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee chaired by Sen. Frank Church.

Watt urges Rotarians to study revision

BELLE GLADE — Members of the Belle Glade Rotary Club were urged to carefully study and discuss the 89 proposed amendments to the Florida Constitution by state legislative candidate Jim Watt.

Watt, former city attorney for West Palm Beach, noted the state's first constitution was adopted in 1838 and the second recognized after the Civil War in 1885.

The constitution presently in force was adopted in 1968 and contained a provision that it be revised in ten years. The next revision will be in 20 years.

Voters will be given their choice of "yes" or "no" votes on eight articles, said Watt. The first deals with 69 amendments one of which, the right of privacy, would in Watt's opinion limit all types of government intrusion into private lives. He noted that in Alaska a police seizure of marijuana was halted by an amendment much like this one.

Also included in Article I are provisions for sovereign immunity for county and state government which would remove the protection they now enjoy from lawsuit and a provision that would prohibit binding arbitration resulting from collecting bargaining among public workers.

Article 2 is called the "Little ERA" and Watt said it does not appear to have the same problems as does the national ERA and Article 3 contains two important provisions. The first would create single-member legislative districts, which Watt favors and the second would call for the creation of a reapportionment commission to convene every ten years and that no elected official could be named to it.

Article 4 would abolish all elected cabinet officers and Article 5 is useless, said Watt. It deals with an elected or appointed Public Service Commission and he said the only way to get an elected PSC back would be for the legislature to change the law passed during the recent special session.

Article 6 deals with merit retention for all judges and Article 7 is the largest article on the ballot and has to do with finance and taxation. Article 8 is on education and is coupled with the abolition of the cabinet, allowing the governor to appoint the state board of education if it passes.

One more article may be added, said Watt, if proponents of casino gambling submit enough names on petitions to the state. The deadline for this action is August 12.

JIM WATT

Registration continues

BELLE GLADE—The small size of Palm Beach Junior College-Glades was cited as a reason registration for the fall term will continue through Aug. 18 on a daily basis while the central and north campuses have already closed registration.

"Because of the smaller size of our operation," said Dr. Cecil Conley, provost of the local campus, "and because the majority of our students attend evening classes, we are able to accept both day and evening registration on a daily basis."

"For best choice of classes," he went on, "please register early."

Dr. Conley said the registration schedule for the Glades campus runs from now through Aug. 18. The hours are from 8 a.m. to noon, from 1 to 4 p.m. and from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the registrar's office.

Students may also register on Aug. 21 during the registration but there will be a late fee. Fall term classes will begin on Aug. 22. Further information may be obtained by calling the registrar's office at 996-3055.

Auditorium plans advance

BELLE GLADE—When Governor Reubin Askew recently signed the state appropriations bill in Tallahassee, the way was cleared for the planned 500-seat auditorium for PBJC Glades and the Glades area communities.

This released $686,747 from the state which matched funds approximately two to one with the $300,000 supplied by area sources.

The auditorium will be used by the people of Belle Glade, Clewiston, Moore Haven, Pahokee and South Bay, as well as by the college, according to Dr. Cecil Conley, provost of the PBJC Glades campus.

A committee of citizens from the Glades will be formed to determine the cultural needs of the area and to work out tentative plans for future events to be held in the instructional and cultural center, Conley said.

Preliminary plans (educational specifications) for the auditorium subject to revision later include:

- Complete facilities for instruction as well as all types of theatrical, music and forensic performances.
- Special provisions for the handicapped, such as ramps from parking lots and farm walkways to buildings.
- An emergency lighting system to be used in case of power failure.
- Lobby space to be used as a gallery.
- Comfortably upholstered auditorium seats.
- A completely equipped fly gallery, including a projection screen and all electric and control facilities necessary.

- Two dressing rooms sized for use by the typical theatrical group, each including a bathroom with shower facilities, makeup tables with lavatories, wardrobe and lockers.

- A scenery shop large enough to build sets and store those not on-stage during a particular scene.

- A workshop accessible by double doors from a work area and fitted with a work bench and tool storage space.

- A set storage room and a piano storage room, the latter with climate control.

- A wardrobe room for costume production, maintenance and storage.

- A paint storage vault and a stage equipment storage room to house music stands and instruments.

- A projection and control booth.

- Three office, instructor/manager's office, a ticket office and a studio office large enough to provide for reading, counseling students, grading papers and private lessons.

- A practice room, with full-length mirror, and adjacent to the studio office, with space for single or small group student practice or instruction.

- "I feel the auditorium will be an asset, not only to PBJC Glades, but to everyone in the Glades area," Conley said.

Red Cross searches for shelter managers

It is inevitable that sometime in the future a hurricane may hit the Palm Beach County area, possibly causing extensive damage and loss of life.

In an effort to become thoroughly prepared in case of a disaster such as a hurricane, the Palm Beach County Chapter of the American Red Cross is looking for volunteers to serve as shelter managers and assistants to manage selected shelters in the county.

Those wishing to volunteer their services will undergo a thorough three hour training course which details the duties and responsibilities of shelter managers and assistants. After completion of the course, which can be given throughout the county, personnel will be assigned to one of the designated shelters in the county.

Those interested in becoming part of this life saving team should contact Don Hicks, Disaster Director/Branch Coordinator, at the American Red Cross at 833-7711 for further information and to sign up for the course.

GO MAMA! is the cry as Teri Hartzog is obviously delighted as her mother, Barbara Hartzog, rips over home plate for another run scored against Merle Norman in an 18-2 rout during the first round of games in the tournament.

Mace wins district

Bob Mace of Belle Glade will have his company's name, Mace Sod, spread across the state as the softball team he sponsors travels to Pensacola for the state tournament August 11, 12, and 13. The team is a member of the Pahokee Men's Softball League.

Managed by Pope McMullen, Mace Sod won first place in the District tournament held over the weekend in West Palm Beach. The double elimination tournament featured ten teams representing areas from Ft. Pierce to Miami. Broward Mercants of Ft. Lauderdale took the second place spot.

Only the top two teams will travel on to Pensacola's state tournament.

Prior to the district win, Mace had a string of first place showings. They won the Belle Glade tournament, the subdistrict tournament in West Palm Beach and the Clewiston tournament, taking them up to the most recent district competition.

The Glades certainly has a first place area and district softball team with the confidence necessary to send them on to the state ranking.

McCoy is named Raider coach

BELLE GLADE—Ben F. McCoy was officially named last week as the head football coach for Glades Central High School, nine years after he left the head coaching position at Lakeshore Junior-Senior High, where he coached Willie McDonald, whose place he is taking.

Principal Effie Grear said Thursday she is naming McCoy, subject to approval by the School Board, to the head coaching position with the varsity Raiders, as well as a physical education teacher.

Dr. Grear said McCoy had told her he had left his dean of boys position at Palm Beach Gardens High School in 1973 to go to Minneapolis, Minn., because he wanted to get back into teaching and coaching. He was head football coach, head girl's basketball coach and physical education instructor at North Community High School in Minneapolis.

McCoy was employed at Lakeshore High from 1955 to 1959. While head football coach there, he won 13 games, tied two and lost two, winning one conference championship and being named Coach of the Year in 1957 and 1958.

As a head basketball coach at Lakeshore, McCoy won 62 games and lost 32, winning one conference championship. As baseball coach, he won 19 games and lost seven and won the conference championship in 1958. That was also the year his football team was undefeated.

McCoy left Lakeshore in 1959 to go to John P. Kennedy High School in Riviera Beach, where he was athletic director for 11 years, head football coach for 11 years, head basketball coach for four years, baseball coach for six years and swimming coach for one year. He organized the school's first football, basketball and baseball teams in 1959.

In football, he won 69 games and lost 48, taking five conference championships and one district championship. He was voted Coach of the Year four times and had an undefeated season in 1968.

Between 1959 and 1962, his basketball team won 40 games and lost 14 games and he was voted Coach of the Year once. Between 1959 and 1964, his baseball teams won 46 games and lost 13 games, winning two conference championships.

His 1967 swimming teams won state championships in boys and girls competition.

During the two years McCoy spent at Suncoast High School

McCoy's football teams won 15 games and lost five. As a junior varsity basketball coach, his teams won the same period won 16 games and lost one. He was selected Coach of the Year in 1971 by the Miami Herald.

McCoy was at Palm Beach Gardens High as dean of boys from 1964 to 1967, before leaving for Minneapolis. Dr. Grear said she expects McCoy to be in Belle Glade sometime this week.

City recreation plans are made

BELLE GLADE—Flag football, weightlifting and tennis are all on tap in the near future by the Belle Glade Recreation Department as plans for August and September near completion.

Recreation Coordinator Harold Beale said anyone interested in competing with the city in a weightlifting contest against Glades Correctional Institution at GCI and probably to be held the third week of August on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon, should contact him at 996-0100 extension 244.

Beale said there will only be two events, the bench press and the deadlift and competition will take place in weight divisions ranging from 114 pounds to super-heavyweight. Beale said members of the city team must be at least 18 years of age.

This is not an AAU meet, Beale warned, and said anyone who is an AAU member of belonging to a lifting club that belongs to the AAU should check the AAU rules to see if this meet might disqualify them from further AAU competition.

"Due to the seriousness of injuries that can result from lifting weights improperly," Beale said, "only properly trained and skilled lifters should consider entering the meet."

Beale said the Recreation Department is also sponsoring a tennis tournament Aug. 12 and 13 at Lyons Park. Singles, doubles and mixed doubles, he said, will be held. All contestants should be at least 14 years of age.

Trophies will be given for the first, second and third place winners in each elimination and Beale said the Lyons Park courts will be reserved for the tournament both Aug. 12 and 13.

He said there will be a $2 registration fee per person and registration forms must be turned in to the Recreation Department by noon Thursday, Aug. 10. Registration forms can be picked up at the Recreation Department in city hall.

The Department is also announcing a men's flag football league set to begin the week of Sept. 10. Beale said the entry fee is $45 per team and the deadline for the entry fee will be 5 p.m. Sept. 1.

Beale said all players must be at least 17 years of age and games will be played at the new Lake Shore Park softball field. The first game of the evening will start at 6:30 p.m. He said games will be played on Monday or Tuesday evenings.

A team may include 15 players. The team roster must be turned in with the entry fee. The deadline for adding players to the roster will be Thursday, Sept. 7 at 5 p.m. Under no circumstances, Beale said, will a team be allowed to add players after this date. Seven players constitute a team.

All games will be 30 minute halves, with the clock running continuously except for time outs. All teams must have a manager who will be responsible for rosters, conduct of the team and other details.

No metal or screw-on type cleats are allowed except for official touch football shoes with soft rubber cleats. Flags and balls will be furnished by the Recreation Department.

Further information on all three programs can be obtained by calling the Recreation Department at 996-0100 Extension 244.
